Document. ZA-AC-2026-01
Version. 1.0
Issued. 4 November 2026
Status. In force
Standing. Public statement. It is not an external audit certificate.
Correspondence. adil.zaman@uog.edu.pk

This statement records how zamanadil.com is intended to be used, the standard it aims at, the limits the proprietor knows about, and how a reader can report a barrier.

It is a statement by Dr. Adil Zaman, proprietor of the site. It is not a certificate from an outside auditor, and it is not a seal or a decision of the University of Gujrat. The clause numbers are part of the instrument. Headings are for ease of reference and do not change the meaning of the clause beneath them.

1. Scope

1.1 This statement covers the public pages published by zamanadil.com, including the profile, publications, research reviews, opinion, services, contact, search, and these legal pages.

1.2 It does not cover a journal site, a publisher PDF, or a DOI page opened from a publication record. Those are published by someone else. A reader who cannot use the outside page can still use the citation on this site to request the source another way. The link itself is covered by the Academic and Editorial Disclaimer.

2. The standard aimed at

2.1 The aim, for the pages this site itself publishes, is Level AA of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.2.

2.2 Those guidelines are the technical standard used here. This statement does not claim that an external audit has certified conformance, and it does not claim a statutory badge.

3. Conformance

3.1 The public pages are partially conformant with WCAG 2.2 Level AA. Partially conformant means that some parts do not yet fully conform, for the reasons in section 6 and section 7.

3.2 The measures in section 4 are in place across the templates this site uses. A newly added record is prepared in those templates. An older record may be shorter, as section 6 states.

4. Measures in place

4.1 Each public page has a skip link to the main content, one main heading, and further headings in a logical order. The language of the page is identified. A passage in Urdu is marked so that a screen reader can treat it as Urdu.

4.2 Links, buttons, and form fields show a visible focus style. Controls can be reached and operated with a keyboard. The contact form can be completed and submitted with a keyboard. An error is written on the page, and is not conveyed by colour alone.

4.3 Form fields have visible labels. Links use text that says where they go. An image that carries meaning has a text alternative. An image that is decorative is hidden from assistive technology.

4.4 Body text and navigation are set for readable contrast. These legal instruments are set as dark text on a light sheet for the same reason. Text can be resized with the browser, and the layout is usable on a small screen.

4.5 Animation follows the reader's system setting for reduced motion.

4.6 The site does not load a third-party analytics script or an advertising frame.

5. Reading language

5.1 A reading-language control is provided on publications, research reviews, and opinion pages, including the individual record. It is not shown on the other pages of the site, which are published in English.

5.2 The choice is kept in the browser, as the Privacy Notice describes. Where a live translation is shown, the published text remains available as the text of record. A live translation can be imperfect, especially for a name or a technical term, and a reader should not have to depend on it for those.

6. Known limits

6.1 Some older records may carry a short summary rather than a full text. The summary is the text available on this site. The full text, where it exists, is the version at the journal or the publisher.

6.2 A live translation is produced by an external service when the reader asks for it. It is not reviewed line by line before it is shown. The published text remains on the page as the text of record.

6.3 A PDF of each of these three instruments is offered for download. The PDF is a secondary copy for printing and filing. It carries a document title and page numbers. It is not the accessible version. The page itself is the version to use with a screen reader, with browser zoom, or with a keyboard.

7. Content published by others

7.1 A journal article, a publisher PDF, or a DOI page is outside this statement. The publication record on this site still gives the citation, so the source can be requested by another route if the outside page is itself a barrier.

8. How to report a barrier

8.1 If a page on zamanadil.com blocks a reader, the reader is asked to write through the contact form, or to adil.zaman@uog.edu.pk, with the subject marked Accessibility.

8.2 The message should name the page, the browser or assistive technology if it is known, and what the reader was trying to do. The message is read as confidential professional correspondence under the Privacy Notice.

9. What will be done

9.1 A barrier that can be corrected in this site will be corrected within a reasonable time. Where a reply address was given, the reader who reported it will be told what will be done, or why a particular limit remains.

10. How this statement was prepared

10.1 This statement was prepared on 4 November 2026 by Dr. Adil Zaman, from the templates and the pages then published. It was not prepared by an external auditor.

10.2 It will be reviewed within twelve months, and sooner if a material change is made to the templates. The issue date on this page will be changed when the statement is reviewed and reissued.

11. Complaints

11.1 This is a personal academic website. It is not a public-sector body, and no statutory accessibility monitor is designated for it by this statement.

11.2 The route offered here is the report described in section 8. A reader who has a separate legal right is not prevented from using it. Nothing in this statement takes that right away, and nothing in it is a seal or a decision of the University of Gujrat.

11.3 In this statement, "the site" means zamanadil.com, and "the proprietor" means Dr. Adil Zaman. The Privacy Notice and the Academic and Editorial Disclaimer are separate instruments.
